

ANDRE KEUCK

BIOGRAPHY

Andre Keuck has a diverse background that incorporates a range of disparate fields and interests. Andre has consulted on large-scale, classified logistics, finance, and security programs to meet global requirements; trained elite Special Forces operators; and advised NGOs and small businesses on strategic planning initiatives. Andre has led technology development for funded startups, and produced award-winning film projects. He has benefited from an international education in the US and UK, and is invigorated by pursuing challenging projects in international settings.

CONSULTING. Andre has deep, multidisciplinary experience managing complex engagements in open and classified environments. He divides his time between commercial business development and strategic management projects, and those focused on his area of academic expertise: illicit finance, the mechanisms used by nefarious actors to resource their operations. Andre has worked as a consultant and instructor for US Army Special Forces to develop creative solutions for such challenges. He has conducted engagements from locations in Africa, the Middle East, and Europe, taking advantage of technology to facilitate real-time collaboration across timezones. Andre emphasizes the importance of partnerships among project participants to deliver solutions that balance innovation with the practicalities of the end-user requirements.

STARTUPS. Andre has led startups from the initial concept stage through development and delivery of products. He is the Founder & CEO of CrowdVault, a funded startup developing a secure, unified knowledge management and collaboration ecosystem for government contractors. To build the platform, Andre assembled a team of technologists and industry experts, who provide close and continuing support and advice to the company. Prior companies include the Owlbee messaging platform, and Black Forest Edibles, an all-natural packaged food manufacturer.

CREATIVE. Andre has maintained a love of the arts since childhood, which led him to roles in classical theatre productions and independent film. He starred as the eponymous “Andre” in the cult hit “Zero Day”, which earned numerous awards on the film festival circuit. Recently, he’s focused his energies on writing and developing feature and short film projects, as well as a budding photography portfolio.

EDUCATION. Andre holds a Masters of Science with Merit in Finance & Financial Law from the University of London’s School of Oriental & African Studies (SOAS). He earned a double-majored Bachelors degree in International Affairs and Computer Science from The George Washington University in Washington, DC.
